* The workshop is in two parts. Teachers should sign up for the two parts consecutively. The order of the two parts is very important. First the students are instructed in their classroom about their local streams, storm drains and the Stream of Dreams project. The students then proceed to the space set up for painting the fish. They receive brief instructions about the painting process and paint their fish. We suggest that the oldest students be scheduled in first so they have time to return and finish their fish if necessary at lunch.
